

European Route of Brick Gothic

Sites along the route

- * Denmark
  - o Århus
  - o Næstved
  - o Horsens
  - o Ribe
  - o Haderslev
- * Sweden
  - o Ystad
  - o Malmö
- * Germany
  - o Bad Doberan
  - o Hanseatic city of Anklam

- o Hanseatic city of Greifswald
- o Hanseatic city of Rostock
- o Hanseatic city of Stralsund
- o Hanseatic city of Wismar
- o Island Rügen
- o County of North-West Mecklenburg
- o Lüneburg
- o Neubrandenburg
- o Parchim
- * Poland
  - o Chełmno
  - o Gdańsk
  - o Kołobrzeg
  - o Koszalin
  - o Olsztyn
  - o Płock
  - o Słupsk
  - o Stargard Szczeciński
  - o Szczecin
  - o Toruń[1]
- * Latvia
  - o Riga
- * Lithuania
  - o Vilnius

* Estonia
o Tartu (Dorpat)

a tourist route connecting 31 cities with Brick Gothic architecture in seven countries along the Baltic Sea, from Sweden through Denmark, Germany, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Many of the cities have also a history as Hanseatic League city, and some are related to German Ostsiedlung or the Teutonic Order, consequently the route is managed by the German Association for Housing, Urban and Spatial Development.

The headquarters of the EuRoB organization are located at the "German Association for Housing, Urban and Spatial Development" in Berlin.

